

The Training Squadron Changes its Schedule.

(Jiji Shimpō, January 14/1907.)

The training squadron has changed its original plan and decided not to visit the United States. Though some people may imagine that the change in schedule bears on the school question in San Francisco, yet the one has nothing to do with the other. The chief reason is that the squadron under the command of Vice-Admiral Ijuin will visit the United States when the bill for the same passes the Diet, and there is no great necessity for the training squadron to do so now. It was also feared that the training Squadron's visit to the United States might possibly interfere with the passage of the bill for despatching Vice-Admiral Ijuin's squadron to the United States.